August Image Submission: Moving Water

Presentation for August meeting will be Capturing the Image by Dan Orcutt.

If you do not have an item in the current category, feel free to submit a recent nature photograph!

Call for trip leaders to schedule photo hikes:
Don’t forget there are close destinations like Roxborough, Evergreen, Waterton Canyon and Barr Lake. If you are not leading a hike, you need not be a trip leader to setup an event. Photography events can be gallery visits, a stationary gathering to photograph the moonset or moonrise, wildlife sanctuary tours, Botanical Garden visit, etc.

Moving Water Hike Recommendations

In keeping with the priorities established by the Photo Section, the newsletter will contain recommendations for hikes that feature our current focus. For shooting moving water in Colorado, dates ranging from April through October are recommended though moving water photography may be found in winter when streams and lakes are frozen.

1. In Indian Peaks Wilderness, the Fourth of July/Arapaho Pass trail provides waterfalls and nearby Diamond Lake and Lake Dorothy.
2. In the Wild Basin section of Rocky Mountain National Park, hike to the Calypso Cascades and Ouzel Falls.
3. Again in the Indian Peaks Wilderness, hike to Long Lake, Lake Isabelle, and then to Pawnee Pass of Isabelle Glacier for the lakes and the cascades/waterfalls.
4. Clear Creek is close and in Golden has a kayaking park that provide interesting water shoots. Also hike further upstream for additional opportunities.
5. Beaver ponds are plentiful in Colorado and often good opportunities for both fast and slow moving water such as the Curtain Ponds near Copper Mountain, the Colorado Trail from Kenosha Pass, the Beaver Ponds Trail near Crested Butte, and numerous places in Rocky Mountain National Park.
6. The Cow Creek Trail, north of Estes Park but within RMNP, leads to Bridal Veil Falls.
Dear Friend,

The U.S. Department of the Interior manages some of America’s most breathtaking national parks, national wildlife refuges and other public lands. That is why I am excited to invite you to join our new photo project, Summer in America’s Great Outdoors.

Our goal is to create a large photo collection of all the fun and exciting things people can do on America’s public lands this summer, and you are our greatest advocates in making this a reality. Many people do not know about all the amazing places across the country they can enjoy – places that belong to all Americans. With your help, we’ll help people better understand the great opportunities for fun this summer in their own backyards and across the country.

Send us your hiking, camping, fishing, biking, sightseeing, and other outdoor recreation photos by clicking here. Take a look at the photos already submitted on our Summer in America’s Great Outdoors Flickr group, where we will be highlighting these photos all summer. Please include a short description of the location, so we can properly identify all the great public lands across the country.

Thank you, and we look forward to sharing your great photos!
