A Newsletter for Members of CMC Backpacking Section

May 2021

CHAIR'S CORNER - Uwe Sartori

Members often ask what do trip leaders do in getting a trip built and across the finish line? Tied into the answer is the awesome value CMC members receive each time they sign up and do a CMC trip. (Think about it. If you go to a guide service, you are likely paying hundreds of dollars a day.) The chart below shows my investment for an upcoming backpacking trip. This personal investment is repeated by many of our trip leaders regardless of the recreational activity. For this 2 day backpacking trip, there are 24 hours of prep/debrief/admin work and 20 hours of trip activity time; 44 hours total. You can begin to understand why the BPX Section is super keen on having our members keep their commitment and help us AVOID ROSTER CHURN. Having trips cancel due to CMC members dropping out is the bane of trip leaders. Show respect and community by keeping your commitment when signing up for a CMC adventure. I guarantee you will not regret it.

MUELLER GEAR CHECK

There is still time to sign up for this year's last Gear Check June 18-19 at Mueller State Park. Greg Long will share his long distance hiking secrets, and there will be other presentations as well.

This is a great opportunity to test your backpacking kit - any repairs needed, new equipment you are trying out, see what other backpackers bring, and share experiences and stories. Mueller State Park has its own trail system, and Dome Rock State Wilderness Area is just down the road. Although a portion of the area is closed until July 15 for Big Horn Sheep lambing season, the majority of the area is open to day hiking before or after the Gear Check.

Here are a few comments from a Pack Leader and BPX members who attended the May 14/15 Chatfield State Park Gear Check:

It was simple, fun, very informative and a great way to meet experienced and lesser experienced members. I had questions about gear and logistics and I got a ton of information. Much better than a lecture. I'd do this again just for fun!

The more I learn about Backpacking, the more I realize I don't know. The BPX Gear Check is an opportunity for old hands and newbies alike to get together and swap tips and tricks. As an old dog I am always looking to learn a new trick and the Gear Check never fails to teach me something useful!

A great opportunity to learn tips and tricks from fellow backpackers!

Cost is $20 to cover campsite fees, but free to BPX Trip Leaders--contact CMCBPXTLC@gmail.com to receive discount code.

Q&A With Backpackers Bob & Bobbi

Dear Backpackers Bob & Bobbi,

I love backpacking but get overwhelmed trying to remember everything I need to take. How do you guys make sure you have everything loaded in your pack?

Dear Packing Challenged,

Bobbi and I always use a checklist to make sure we have everything—don't want to discover in the wilds that we forgot a critical piece of gear or didn't pack all our food. When we get home, we re-evaluate our checklist, making tweaks for things we forgot, didn't need, had too much or too little of, etc. We especially look at our food—I typically take too much.

Remember that what you pack will change slightly depending on the season, expected weather, number of trip-days, water availability, max distance/elevation gain in a day, above or below tree line, terrain (both travel and camping,) if there's a water crossing, etc. One of the benefits of being on a BPX trip is group size and gear sharing—if you do forget something or have a gear failure, odds are you can borrow/share with someone else.

Even with the most comprehensive list, check your equipment before you head out to make sure everything is in working order. A great place to do this is the upcoming Gear Check at Mueller on June 18.

*See ya' on the trails,
Bob & Bobbi Backpacker*
