Cathy and Gordon Illg have been full time nature photographers since 2000. Their work is widely published and includes numerous covers of magazines like Backpacker, Defenders, National Geographic Kids, Ranger Rick and National Wildlife. Several of their images decorate the tails of Frontier Airlines’ jets, and they’ve done well in photo contests, the highlight of which was being flown to London to accept awards in the Wildlife Photographer of the Year Contest.

They were recognized for their work with endangered species in Canon’s Wildlife As Canon Sees It ad in National Geographic. Both of their first two books, Dynamic Wildlife Photography and Worshipping With A Camera, have been well received, and for the past 19 years their livelihood has been dependent upon their ability to share the magic of wild things and wild places with other photographers.
March’s meeting will be an interactive session facilitated by Nancy Duplan, starring members of the audience. Last August at Colleen Miniuk-Sperry’s presentation, Seeing the Light in Outdoor Photography, we learned how important understanding and using light is to photography.

In preparation for your part in the March program, we offer the following guidelines for each of your images (2-3 of your choice).

Guidelines for All About Light Presentation

WHAT: Type of camera and settings you used

SUBJECT: Type of lighting (side, back, reflected, diffused, cloudy etc)

WHEN: Time of Day

WHERE: Location of shooting

ACCESSORIES USED: Filter, tripod, reflector, diffuser, cable release

WHAT YOU LEARNED: Successful or unsuccessful

Please come prepared with the above information for each of your images. Remember the success of the March program depends on YOUR participation!
